Last Man Standing

The last two turn their backs to one another. The sheriff chooses a word that will be the trigger word. He then calls out other words, usually rhyming words or words that start with the same letter, and for each word, the players take a step away from each other. When he calls the final word, the players race to face each other, draw, and yell bang. Whoever draws and “shoots” quickest wins.

Sheriff Dies

If the player in the middle doesn't duck quickly enough, they are shot and out instead. The game continues until there are two players left.
