

BANG 🤔

Players stand in a circle with one person standing in the middle of the circle as “the sheriff”. The sheriff points at another player who must quickly crouch while those on either side of them quickly “draw”. These players point at one another and yell bang. The last one to yell bang gets shot and is out of the game. If the player in the middle doesn’t duck quickly enough, they are shot and out instead. The game continues until there are two players left. The last two turn their backs to one another. The sheriff chooses a word that will be the trigger word. He then calls out other words, usually rhyming words or words that start with the same letter, and for each word, the players take a step away from each other. When he calls the final word, the players race to draw, and yell bang. Whoever draws and “shoots” quickest wins.
